European Studies

The Master in European Studies (MES) is a multi-lingual, interdisciplinary, cross-faculty M.A. course of study offered by the faculties of law, cultural and social sciences and business administration and economics of the European University Viadrina. Taking an interdisciplinary approach, students form a broad, critical conception of cultural, political, economic and legal developments in Europe and the European Union. Within the fields of culture, politics, economics and law, students can choose and combine modules according to interest, allowing for personal flexibility between disciplinary and interdisciplinary focus.

Career prospects

Many of our graduates go on to work for NGOs, national and international education institutions and foundations, cultural and political institutions, European and international companies, in the field of political education, political consulting or at the interface between economics and politics.

International profile and double degrees

Instruction is given mostly in German but also in English, French and Polish. Students are required to study one modern European foreign language. Students with a special interest in languages can work towards a multi-lingual certificate. To strengthen their international profiles, students may complete one semester abroad at one of the over 200 universities cooperating with Viadrina. Students also have the option of applying to take part in the double degree program at Bilgi University in Istanbul, the Institut d'Etudes Politiques in Strasbourg or the Uniwersytet im. Adama Mickiewicza in Poznań.

Entry requirements

Applicants must have:

- a degree in the field of law, political or economic science, or cultural and social sciences
- documented English skills, Level B2 or higher

International applicants must also have:

- German skills
